WILL NOT STRIKE.

The Rumor of the Contemplated Telegraphers' Strike Denied.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 12.—A rumor was recently circulated that the Western Union telegraph operators throughout the country are secretly planning another grand strike similar to that of last summer, for the purpose of enforcing the concession which they then failed to obtain. It was said that the strike last year led to a more thorough organization of the telegraphers' brotherhood, and that a fund had been collected with which to carry on the impending conflict which the rumor stated, is to begin the first week in June, while the Republican convention at Chicago is being held. A Post-Dispatch correspondent yesterday called upon a telegraph operator, a member of the brotherhood, and who was one of the prominent strikers last year. He assured, wholly, the truth of the report. "I am in a position to know fully of any plans on the part of our brotherhood," he said, "and I can assure you that no such movement is being contemplated. Our experiences in the past have been bitter, indeed, and had the effect of demoralizing our Union. I do not deny that a fund is being accumulated, nor do I confess that our hopes of ultimate success, which led us to strike in 1883, have been entirely shattered by our defeat, but I will say that the sorry ending of our last experiment and the many precautions that have been adopted by the company to prevent such a general strike occurring again, would preclude us from adopting a similar policy in the near future." Another well-known officer of the Telegraphers' Brotherhood expressed his conviction that the whole thing was a hoax. "Why," he said, "do you think that if we had such a movement on foot we would be so foolish as to advertise it nearly a month ahead and give the company time to arm itself? Not much." The manager of the operating room at the general office, corner Broadway and Dey street, said that there was not the slightest truth in the report.

BOXING BOUTS.

Exhibition of the Manly Art by Billy Edwards and Charley Mitchell.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The great event in sporting circles to-day is the meeting at Madison Square Garden of those great exemplars of the manly art, Billy Edwards and Charley Mitchell. Both have been in training for some weeks, and each last night expressed opinions of his ability to defeat the other. Edwards was trained at W. H. Travers' country seat at Lyndhurst, N. J., with his brother Warry as his mentor. Mitchell has trained at Williamsburg and Billy Maaden has had charge of him. Edwards was seen last night and said that he is in finer condition than any time since he fought Arthur Chambers on Squirrel Island, which Arthur won by a trick of his second, who hit him on the shoulder when Edwards had him all but whipped. Billy said he would mount the stage to-night weighing about 150 pounds. Mitchell says he will appear ready for the battle weighing 154 pounds. Mitchell has been before the public much more frequently during the past two years than the ex-champion light weight, and his style and mode of attack is better known to those who recently became enthusiastic attendants at boxing bouts. But those who know the gentlemanly ex-champion are confident he will win. During the past two years, Edwards has been busy as a private detective for Ned Stokes, and has not appeared often in public. Previous to that he often set to with his brother and Prof. Pat Jordan at benefit performances, and any one who has seen him knows that a more scientific boxer never wore gloves. Although Edwards is allowed his opponent nearly two inches in height and twenty-three pounds in weight, there are those who believe that he will lead the fight. The meeting between Mitchell and Edwards will be preceded by boxing by Costigan and Mally, Miley and Demmy, Cryan and Williams and others, who will make warm and interesting bouts.

FOUR COURTS FINDINGS.

Cases Disposed of in the Various Tribunals—Police Notes.

Wm. Grabin was arraigned before Judge Cady this morning on a charge of failing to procure a license. A proposition to let the defendant off on costs was made and rejected by Grabin, who went to trial. When the court learned how long the vehicle had been used without a license, a fine of $5 and costs was imposed. "That's not right, that's not right," exclaimed the defendant, as he went toward the Marshal's desk. "It will cost you $5 50," said Marshal Smith. "No, sir," said the defendant, who was immediately put in the dock where, in meditation undisturbed, he came to the conclusion that there was no use to kick against a court, and the judgment was satisfied.

A charge of petit larceny against James Rowland, alias Sullivan, was dismissed to-day, and he was held to answer for grand larceny.

A nolle proes was entered in the Court of Criminal Correction to-day, on a charge of petit larceny against John Moeringer.

Entries seven and eight on the docket of the Court of Criminal Correction to-day are as follows:

James Hindman, selling lottery tickets, guilty; fined $200. Sentence deferred.

John Roth of 1503 Market street reported to the police to-day that his dog's license, No. 5603, was stolen last night.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

John Ward's Death from the Discharge of a Pistol Cartridge.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

ALTON, ILL., May 12.—About 7 o'clock last night a young man, named John Ward, died at the residence of Wm. Kidwell, on Milton Hill, a few miles below this city, from a pistol wound. He was taking some cartridges out of the weapon, when it was discharged, the charge entering his stomach, resulting in death a few hours later. He was 24 years old, unmarried, and was a brother-in-law of Mr. Kidwell.

Rain Again.

The pleasant weather of to-day will not stay with us long, according to the Signal Service, and shifting winds will bring clouds and moisture tomorrow. Clear and fair skies are reported at all stations west of the Mississippi, except in Dakota, where it is snowing. Light rains have fallen in the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys. The barometer is lowest in Colorado and highest on the South Atlantic Coast. The temperature has been unsettled all over the country.

An Attachment Against Enos.

The Laclede Bank sued out an attachment this morning against the property of Lewis Enos, on a draft of $4,000 alleged to be due the bank. The suit grew out of the refusal of the St. Louis and Cairo Railroad Company to accede to the payment of a draft for $5,000 drawn on the Laclede by Enos in the name of the company and alleged to have been forged. Enos was the defaulting cashier of the company.

TWO TARIFF BILLS.

Abe Hewitt and Joannie O'Neill to the front.

Bills of Texas Opposed to Both Measures—The Elections Committee Making Votes for Tariff Reform—The Swain Investigation—The McLean-Broadhead Contest—Congress.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 12.—The indications this morning all point to more tariff legislation. Hewitt has introduced his new tariff bill, putting raw material on the free list and making a sort of cross between the Morrill bill and the present tariff.

THE ELECTIONS COMMITTEE. It is understood to have received orders to fire every Republican showing contest, is holding a secret session. Chairman Turner, who has just emerged from the committee room, refused to give any information, but it is understood that there is a pretty hot time inside. The McKinley case is known to under consideration now, and it was understood before the committee met that he would have to go. It is probable that a fight is being made on the point of whether the committee is to remove McKinley, Morey, Pease and Wise, and so make eight more votes for the tariff bill, which the Ways and Means Committee will make up from Hewitt's bill.

DR. McLEAN IS HERE for the purpose of pushing his election case against Mr. Broadhead. He finds the McKinley case in no mood to go to sea. Rep. McLean, and he is not likely to get action in his case very soon, or if he does, it will be pretty sure to be unfavorable to himself. The case was to have been taken up about the 11th inst., but which date Valentine was expected back, but he is not here yet.

CONGRESSMAN MILLER OF TEXAS. who is a living exponent of the extreme tariff reform sentiment in the House, and member of the Ways and Means Committee, being asked this afternoon by your correspondent what he thought of Hewitt's tariff bill, said: "I don't favor any more tariff legislation. The McKinley case is tired of it. The Chicago convention is the board of appeal now."

The vote in the Wallace-McKinley case in the committee was six for Wallace and five for McKinley.

THE ISSUE OF DOLLARS. The dollar for the week ending May 10 was 34.97, corresponding period last year, 35.00.

THE NEW COMPTROLLER. Mr. Cannon, the new Comptroller of Currency, formally entered upon the duties of his office this morning.

IN DEFENSE OF GEN. SWAIN. In the Swain case, the morning Col. A. P. Morrow of the Sixth Cavalry was called by the defense. He testified to the circumstances attending the investigation of a loan of $1,500 from Bateman & Co. in March, 1883. He said he had gone to a loan of $1,500 from Gen. Swain, who was unable to loan him that sum, but referred him to his bankers, who, he said, did not sort of business, and gave him a check for $1,500.

Mr. Bateman, in that company with McKibben he had gone to Bateman & Co., and asked for a loan of $1,500, which he had received from Gen. Swain. He had accepted from them $1,500, depositing accounts for four months' pay as security. He said he had not said anything to Gen. Swain about his pay accounts at the time of their interview. On cross-examination, it was asked if the accounts he deposited with Bateman & Co. as security were duplicates of his pay accounts. Mr. Cannon said that he had not said anything to Gen. Swain about his pay accounts, and that he had not said anything to Gen. Swain about his pay accounts, and that he had not said anything to Gen. Swain about his pay accounts.

THE SENATE. The chair laid before the Senate a petition from the American Medical Association praying that steps be taken to relieve the suffering from the epidemic disease.

Senator Plumb introduced a bill to denate from the public lands a certain strip of land to the city of Kirwin, Kansas. Referred.

Senator Van Wyck moved to take up his resolution directing the Secretary of Interior to withhold from the Northern Pacific Railroad the patents of certain land grants. Agreed to.

Senator Conner said there was a legal question involved. He thought the resolution should be referred to the Judiciary Committee for its opinion, besides it was a questionable whether the Senate should direct an executive officer not to execute the law.

THE HOUSE. Bills were introduced and referred as follows: By Mr. Cox of New York—To place Gen. Grant on the retired list.

By Mr. Hewitt of New York—To modify the existing laws relating to duties on imports and internal revenue tax to enlarge the free list.

By Mr. Payson—To restrict the ownership of land in the territories to American citizens. It prohibits any non-citizen or alien who has not declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States from acquiring, holding, possessing or holding any real estate in any of the territories; also, to place lumber on the free list; and to reduce the rates of duties on sugar 50 percent.

THE POST-DISPATCH to-day is like the young lady who was asked to take another saucer of ice-cream and who sweetly answered, "Thanks, but I am a little crowded already."

We are beginning to locate that shrinkage of $1,500,000 in Wall street stocks. KNEZE took $6,000,000 of it and GRANT & WARD $10,000,000, leaving only $1,484,000 to be accounted for.

Now that the Elevated Railroad bill has been ordered to engrossment, it will be well for the citizens who are in favor of "rapid transit" to make their influence felt in this matter, as they have done in the matter of the Cable Road.

The magnitude of the GRANT failure temporarily obscured the lesser failure of SABIN, the Minnesota lumber-king, Chairman of the Republican National Committee and possible dark horse for the Chicago nomination. Exit SABIN.

It is rumored that ARTHUR has lost money by the Marine Bank failure. We believe it was at the Dorsey banquet given to celebrate the Indiana victory that ARTHUR formulated the beautiful expression: "While there is life there is hope."

A CORRESPONDENT who has grown tired of the management of the street railroad question by the City Council asks if it is not about time to hold an indignation meeting. There ought to be indignation meetings at the primaries and at the polls whenever an election comes around, but there never is.

The Columbia Statesman, which has hitherto been friendly to Governor CRITTENDEN, now jumps on him and manifests a savage desire to recall the story of the relations between CRITTENDEN the office-giver, and MCCORMACK the office-taker. This is perhaps the most malicious attack that could be made on the Governor, and it appears only the more malicious under the insidious guise of a defense of his transactions. The Statesman will probably begin hunting through our files to republish the testimony in the celebrated case as a vindication.

If the House wants to do any more record making on the tariff question, it should devote one day to voting, without debate, on an assortment of, say, a baker's dozen of tariff bills, and so make an end of the business for this session. Some prompt and effective work in the way of regulating later-State commerce, restoring unearned land grants to the public domain, restraining the land-grabbers who are fencing out the homesteaders, and securing the ultimate payment of the vast sums loaned to the Pacific Railroads, would go far toward compensating for the failure to reduce taxation.

At every approach of the Presidential nomination season there is a renewal of the public distress about General GRANT's financial condition, more talk about passing around the hat, and a renewal of the proposition to put him on the retired list for a liberal salary. It seems to be aspirants for the Republican nomination, like EDMUNDS and LOGAN, who take the liveliest interest in the latter proposition. They regard him as a political "Jack-in-the-box," liable to pop up in nominating conventions at the most inopportune times. What they want is to retire him from politics, and fasten down the lid securely with a good heavy pension that will keep him still and quiet.

When one reads of GRANT, the hero of a nation's crisis, running in his distress to VANDERBILT to borrow a pitiful $150,000 with which to stay the disastrous bankruptcy of a firm of Wall street windmills to which he had lent his name, it is impossible not to think of what might have been. For eight years GRANT has been seeking the society of the New York millionaires who have used him and ruined him. If he had retired to his Galena home or settled down in quiet on his St. Louis farm, content to live the life of a plain unassuming citizen, his party, which is now sorely pushed for a candidate, would be ready to take him up with a whirl and solve all difficulties by sending him to the White House again. GRANT got something more than his money in Wall street.

The Elevated Railway Bill went to engrossment on last Friday night and will undoubtedly be passed by the House on Tuesday night. If not delayed by the opposition, it will go to its first reading in the Council the same night, and will have its second reading and be referred to the committee of the Council on railroads on Tuesday, the 30th. This will give ample time to secure its passage before the 30th of June, the time set for adjournment. The Committee on Railroads in the Council should, however, do justice to this enterprise, hold a meeting on this bill not later than the 22nd, so that the bill may be reported to the Council by the meeting on Friday, the 23rd. The sooner the improvement is put on its feet and the work of construction begun the better. With a peal bond to the city and a guarantee against damages to all citizens, the bill certainly complies with all the conditions that could be reasonably required.

TAKING FOR PUBLIC USE.
The constitutional power of the State to destroy the use and value of private property without compensation by such enactments as that prohibiting the manufacture or sale of intoxicating beverages, is to be tested in Iowa when her prohibitory law goes into effect on the 1st of July.

The Constitution of Iowa, like that of the United States, provides that "no person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law," and that "private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation." The Supreme Court of Iowa has held that such provisions in both the Federal and State constitutions do not forbid the passage by that State of a prohibitory liquor law injuriously affecting private property invested in the liquor business, since the said property, though incidentally injured and rendered valueless by the law, is in no sense taken for public use.

But there is reason to believe that this Iowa decision will not be sustained by the United States Supreme Court. The latter has certainly affirmed the power of a State to regulate or even prohibit the liquor traffic, but never to the extent of destroying the use and value of property in existence at the time of the enactment without compensating the owner. On the contrary, several of the Supreme Court Justices in their opinions expressly excepted such operations from the powers they conceded to the States. There was no question of private property injured or destroyed before them, but they spoke of that as the only exception to the State's prohibitory power, and indicated very clearly that, where private rights of property stand in the way of the public good, they can be removed, impaired or destroyed only by making just compensation to the owner.

As to what constitutes a taking of private property for public use, and as to how far the provision can be properly applied to the mere damaging of private property for the public good, there have been many controversies and conflicting decisions in State courts. A decision of the United States Supreme Court on this point in the Iowa case will be very interesting and important. The framers of our Missouri Constitution settled the question for this State by providing that private property "shall not be taken or damaged for public use without compensation," and a prohibitory law that did not provide compensation for all brewery, distillery and vineyard property damaged thereby, would be in direct conflict with the organic law of Missouri. Many eminent legal authorities, however, have held that the constitutional provision means the same without as with the words "or damaged," and if the U. S. Supreme Court take the same view, Iowa's prohibitory law will be "knocked out."

FUTURE OCEAN TRAVEL.
The annual migration across the ocean of those good Americans who prefer not waiting until after death to visit Paris is among the events of the season and is of more interest this year because of new conditions which are coming in sight.

There are now two classes of ocean steamers, those which can make the trip inside of seven days and those which cannot. Since last year the different lines have increased their capacity for carrying passengers by at least a thousand passengers a week and the new steamers are all of the swift class.

These swift steamers, which will carry between four and five hundred passengers on a trip, are certain of being full for the season, and the question is how to utilize the less popular steamers. There is talk of "cutting rates," or reducing the price of passage so as to secure the patronage of people who do not think of a trip to Europe on account of the cost of the ferry.

If the steamship companies are wise enough to do this it will revolutionize the whole question of ocean travel. The people who can pay $200 for the steamship part of a trip are numbered by the tens of thousands. The people who could afford to pay $100 for the round trip and spend the other hundreds of thousands. Rates are now too high; if they can be reduced and if the idea can be dispelled that the European trip is a luxury for the wealthy and aristocratic, we may expect to see Europe invaded.

There cannot be too much travel between America and Europe. Americans have many things to learn from Europe and they have also many things to teach the Europeans. If we have any class of people who cannot stand contact with Europe without losing their American characters, they are a poor lot and we can afford to lose them.

BLAINE's recent capture of MEDILL, HALSTED and DEAN SMITH is a mystery which has been deepened somewhat by HORACE WHITE's revelations as to how the original anti-Blaine syndicate of Republican papers was formed. The New York Evening Post and the Springfield Republican stand firm, and the former, edited by HORACE WHITE, who was MEDILL's partner and editor when the syndicate was formed, intimates that the nomination of BLAINE will bring forth some startling information in regard to his record which is already known to his new editorial friends, but not to the general public. Having swallowed GARFIELD's record and supported his administration under BLAINE's premiership, they seem to have acquired a taste for political Limburger and can now take BLAINE himself without holding their noses.

AMONG the unfinished business awaiting further action in the House is the bill which was passed early in the session declaring the forfeiture of the unearned portion of the Oregon Central Railway grant, and which has been returned from the Senate with an amendment. The grant covers 3,000,000 acres of the most valuable timber lands on the Pacific coast, much of it in very fertile valleys that will be worth more when cleared for farming, though the timber alone is now estimated to be worth $10 an acre. But a small part has been earned by the construction of a few miles of road, and for ten years past the rest has been forfeitable. The failure of Congress to declare it forfeited has, during that time, simply kept settlers from buying and improving the land, and there should be no further delay in declaring the forfeiture of every unearned section of land grant where the time limit has expired.

Laid to Rest.
From the New York World.
The funeral of Katharine Edith, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer took place yesterday afternoon from the family residence, No. 17 Gramercy Park. The beautiful faced child slept the last sleep in a flower enwreathed casket, with white blossoms smiling down from all sides. A pair of rosebuds ajar bespoke the sympathy of the U. S. L. Post-Dispatch editorial staff and a broad column of white doves and lilies told of the silent grief of THE WORLD editorial and city staff. A harp from THE WORLD publication office and a wreath swung above a mound of flowers from THE WORLD composing room stood side by side. The room was heavy with the odor of spring floral offerings, reminders of Katharine's life. Mr. and Mrs. Pulitzer, Mr. Rufus Randall, Mrs. Hattie Noble, Dr. Kolb, Mayor of St. Louis, and others. The solemn funeral service of the Episcopal Church was listened to among others by Roscoe Conkling, August Belmont, Andrew H. Green, Mr. and Mrs. Guy H. Pelton, William J. Florence and Melville C. Day. The interment took place in Woodburn cemetery, the last of the family. The body was spoken most feelingly by Rev. Dr. Charles H. Hall of Holy Trinity church, Brooklyn.

Threatening Blaine.
From the New York Evening Post (Rep.).
We have to say to the Tribune that "the whole story" of Mr. Blaine's railroad operations will be told in case he is nominated for the Presidency. What has appeared is literally only an instalment, but it is in our opinion sufficient. There are facts to cope with nobody, not even his friend Mr. Phelps, will attempt to explain or deny. They will be mighty interesting campaign weapons, which would do the work of any occasion to produce them. He was "on the make" between 1862 and 1873, as so many others were, and involved himself in a series of political financial transactions which unfitted him permanently for any high office, but which everybody will be content to leave undisturbed now that he will simply stop pestering the Republicans for a nomination which would ruin the party. No one wants to investigate his unsavory private affairs any more than seems absolutely necessary. We certainly do not. The medicine we have administered will, we believe, cure him permanently of the Presidential fever. Should his symptoms continue, or be aggravated by the convention, the dose must of course be made stronger, but the prescription is the right one, and is sure to succeed in the end.

Negro Killing.
From the Fulton, Mo., Telegraph (Dem).
Last Saturday night a body of armed and masked men entered the lowly cabin of a negro man, situated in the northern part of this county, about fifteen miles from Fulton, seized a young man 19 years of age, dragged him from his bed and out of the house, and deliberately and in cold blood shot and killed him. It was an act of cold, deliberate and lawless murder, and, no matter how many excuses may be made for it, it is a reflection upon the sufficiency and power of law and its administration, a defamation of the high character of the neighborhood where the crime was committed, and an ineffaceable stigma upon the good name of the entire county. The respectability of the offenders, if such they were, and the alleged necessity of the act, are of no account, and the victims deserve the punishment of the law. If these methods are to be treated with impunity by the authorities, or gently rebuked, or sanctioned outright by public sentiment, then the spirit of the mob is supreme, and life and property is uncertain and unsafe, and the law is abrogated and the protection of life is relegated to the individual citizen.

Lessons for Democratic Study.
From the Philadelphia Times.
The New York Times, the Evening Post, the Boston Herald and the Springfield Republican all pat Morrison lovingly on the back for his free trade efforts, and they all demand the nomination of Edmunds, a positive protectionist, for President, and all will support the Republican nominee, who is certain to be a protectionist.

The Chicago Tribune affectionately indorses the Morrison movement, free trader, and is enthusiastic for the nomination of Blaine, a rank protectionist, for President, and will support any Republican protectionist against any Democratic free trader or revenue reformer.

Henry Ward Beecher and any number of other Republican New England theorists applaud the Morrison free trade movement at free trade feasts and in public interviews, but they will be ready to take the stump against any Democratic revenue reformer and in favor of any Republican protectionist as soon as the campaign opens.

MISSOURI POLITICS.
THE Nevada Democrat holds the name of Hon. W. J. Stone, as Vernon's candidate for Congress in the Twelfth District.

CHARLEY MORGAN is a candidate for re-election to Congress from the Twelfth District, and the Lamar Democrat is for him.

MIAMI NEWS: Mr. O'Day will find that he has not the power to boss the Democratic party. We want no boss and will have none.

THE Versailles Gazette says: "In trying to build up a boom for Field for President, the Kansas City Times has the entire field to itself."

THERE is no scarcity for Congressmen for Congress in the Fourteenth District, and the Democratic committee is called to meet at Poplar Bluff on the 27th inst.

KANSAS CITY STAR: If there is any man whose services really entitle him to the Republican Presidential nomination, it is Sam Randall, of Pennsylvania.

SPRINGFIELD LEADER: We dislike to cast doubts on our editorial friend, the Kansas City Times, but we fear its too new method of electing delegates worked at Chicago before they could appreciate its results. Its bestialities will, of course, appear in its results. Collector Robertson is the gentleman who once proved too much for Senator Chandler. But then he had Gen. Garfield and Mr. Blaine to help him.

THE Times says: "According to Mr. Watterston's paper, the issue at the Democratic National Convention is to be the 'Kentucky idea' as against the 'Pennsylvania idea,' and of the former Mr. Carlisle, as a candidate for the Presidential nomination, is to be the representative. It is unnecessary to say that Mr. Randall would be naturally his rival. With this promising little difference to adjust beforehand, it is not surprising that the interest of the Democracy in the National contest is somewhat undeveloped."

THE Tribune says: "Mr. Hewitt is not satisfied to drop the tariff question in this session. He intends to present an amended bill, the outlines of which he has fixed upon, though he cannot be certain on night that he will not change his mind in regard to it. He has the advantage of a practical knowledge of the subject, but he may discover when he brings it up in the House that he has made another mistake. His recent experience with the Navy Department, and in other matters, show the danger of going ahead rashly."

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.
Where the Readers of the Post-Dispatch Find a Hearing.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
A Subscriber in your today's paper asks for some very queer questions in regard to the proceedings of a picnic to be held by a certain public school, the preliminary meeting of which he claims to have been invited to. Allow me to dispel his fog. The patrons of the Charters School have had picnics "for the benefit of the school" for many years, the "nature" of the children not interfering much. The result has been that by the proceeds of these picnics Charters School has been provided with necessities, ornaments, etc., that the School Board could not—for there are many schools to be provided for—furnish and equip with the same. At the last year's picnic of Charters School the committee having the matter in hand had near $600 expended in the picnic, and the school was provided with the same. The sale of tickets alone could have sufficed for that amount. The picnic was provided with three presents and five hundred dollars worth of necessities. The proceeds were absorbed by the little ones. The author knows that the Charters School picnic have been successful, and that by the action of the committee as well as the teachers they have been so. The author does not belong to the school, but he knows the facts.

MEN OF MARK.
MATTHEW ARNOLD's long-experted essay on Emerson appears in Macmillan's for May.

GENERAL GRANT was too much for Lee and Longstreet, but he stood no show whatever against Fish and Wall street.

MR. GOULD was a general subscriber to the Grant testimonial, and he has been very generous in his contributions. He has given the right pointers in stock.

OLD MAN MICHAEL Thomas Bagg, the brewer, was offered a baronetcy two years ago, and declined the honor. If he had been a long-haired poet he would have accepted.

ONE of the dogs in the dog convention at New York is owned by President Arthur. It is a handsome red mastiff, and seems more liable to carry off a prize than its master does in the Republican convention at Chicago.

In illustration of the Scotchman's love of country the late Duke of Buccleuch said: "I would rather die in a snow-bred on the braes of Yarow than on the softest bed on the shores of the Mediterranean."

MICHAEL DAVITT writes to the Dublin Freeman's Journal that it is his programme to deliver a series of lectures in Australia, New Zealand, the United States and Canada during the next two years. At the expiration of that time he says he will return to Ireland.

MR. EDMUND YATES, who is sentenced to imprisonment for a scandalous libel furnished his newspaper by a "noble" lady, expresses the opinion that there is no refinement in the United States outside of Massachusetts, and by a singular coincidence the same opinion obtains extensively in the Beacon Hill region of Boston.

RICHARD B. CHAMBERLIN, Walter N. Bedford and a son of Lord Rossmore, lordlings from London, are in jail in Toronto. The young men ran up big bills at a leading hotel in that town, declaring that they were expecting money from home, but the money never came, and they were left to their own devices.

JEFFERSON DAVIS, who is a West Point graduate, but never especially remarkable as a soldier, considers Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston the greatest general in the civil war. Gen. Lee, next. Gen. McClellan the best trained soldier. Gen. Sherman a good strategist. Gen. Grant a great commander, but expresses no opinion of Stonewall Jackson, who was as good as any of them.

LOUIS SCHAEFER, proprietor of the opera house at Canton, Ohio, was written by Mrs. McKelham, grand-daughter of Thomas Jefferson, who was recently granted a pension by Congress, offering her a home. "She shall have the best means will allow," he says, "and I will gladly welcome her to my roof. She is now over 70 years of age. That is the kin of a Democrat I am."

MINISTER LANGSTON, who represents the United States at the capital of Hayti, stands, with Frederick Douglass, Professor Greener, ex-Senator Bruce and a few other very prominent men in the midst of his race. Langston arrived from Port-au-Prince the other day on a strange errand. His son, Frank Langston, recently killed James Spencer in Baltimore, and until the father reached Washington on Monday the murderer was in hiding. Then he gave himself up and there were sensational scenes of weeping and so on between the father and son. Col. G. Ingersoll is to defend the accused.

THE METROPOLITAN PRESS.
What the Editors of the New York Journals Are Saying To-Day.
By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, May 12.—The World says: "Mr. Blaine, as a Republican, is unfit to be President, and if nominated will be defeated by the good sense of the people, unless elected by the follies of the Democracy."
THE SUN says: "The Republicans have given Mr. Arthur a generous supply of complimentary resolutions. If they had been as liberal toward him in the election of delegates, he could be nominated on any day. It is very much the same with Mr. Blaine. He could be easily nominated at the outset if he only had delegates enough. The interesting question now is whether the country is to be ruled by the large resources in material, and extensive relations of the country, or by the small number of delegates who can be secured by the use of money. Of course these difficulties can be removed, and the Exposition management may find a way to do so, but the question of the country is not to be decided by the grand show."

ART at the Exposition.
ST. LOUIS, May 12, 1884.
A suggestion in a morning paper respecting the Exposition is certainly good—that effort should be made to break the monotony of the displays of masses of industrial products by a strong show of art works, antiquities and the like, thus giving variety to the common world. There is a large number of such things in the collection of the Exposition, and a good display of art works, antiquities (or whatever is the proper name), with a nice selection of bric-a-brac would be a great improvement. Perhaps even the most striking feature of the Exposition.

THE Times says: "According to Mr. Watterston's paper, the issue at the Democratic National Convention is to be the 'Kentucky idea' as against the 'Pennsylvania idea,' and of the former Mr. Carlisle, as a candidate for the Presidential nomination, is to be the representative. It is unnecessary to say that Mr. Randall would be naturally his rival. With this promising little difference to adjust beforehand, it is not surprising that the interest of the Democracy in the National contest is somewhat undeveloped."

THE Tribune says: "Mr. Hewitt is not satisfied to drop the tariff question in this session. He intends to present an amended bill, the outlines of which he has fixed upon, though he cannot be certain on night that he will not change his mind in regard to it. He has the advantage of a practical knowledge of the subject, but he may discover when he brings it up in the House that he has made another mistake. His recent experience with the Navy Department, and in other matters, show the danger of going ahead rashly."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
A Subscriber in your today's paper asks for some very queer questions in regard to the proceedings of a picnic to be held by a certain public school, the preliminary meeting of which he claims to have been invited to. Allow me to dispel his fog. The patrons of the Charters School have had picnics "for the benefit of the school" for many years, the "nature" of the children not interfering much. The result has been that by the proceeds of these picnics Charters School has been provided with necessities, ornaments, etc., that the School Board could not—for there are many schools to be provided for—furnish and equip with the same. At the last year's picnic of Charters School the committee having the matter in hand had near $600 expended in the picnic, and the school was provided with the same. The sale of tickets alone could have sufficed for that amount. The picnic was provided with three presents and five hundred dollars worth of necessities. The proceeds were absorbed by the little ones. The author knows that the Charters School picnic have been successful, and that by the action of the committee as well as the teachers they have been so. The author does not belong to the school, but he knows the facts.

MATTHEW ARNOLD's long-experted essay on Emerson appears in Macmillan's for May.

GENERAL GRANT was too much for Lee and Longstreet, but he stood no show whatever against Fish and Wall street.

MR. GOULD was a general subscriber to the Grant testimonial, and he has been very generous in his contributions. He has given the right pointers in stock.

OLD MAN MICHAEL Thomas Bagg, the brewer, was offered a baronetcy two years ago, and declined the honor. If he had been a long-haired poet he would have accepted.

ONE of the dogs in the dog convention at New York is owned by President Arthur. It is a handsome red mastiff, and seems more liable to carry off a prize than its master does in the Republican convention at Chicago.

In illustration of the Scotchman's love of country the late Duke of Buccleuch said: "I would rather die in a snow-bred on the braes of Yarow than on the softest bed on the shores of the Mediterranean."

MR. RICHARD B. CHAMBERLIN, Walter N. Bedford and a son of Lord Rossmore, lordlings from London, are in jail in Toronto. The young men ran up big bills at a leading hotel in that town, declaring that they were expecting money from home, but the money never came, and they were left to their own devices.

JEFFERSON DAVIS, who is a West Point graduate, but never especially remarkable as a soldier, considers Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston the greatest general in the civil war. Gen. Lee, next. Gen. McClellan the best trained soldier. Gen. Sherman a good strategist. Gen. Grant a great commander, but expresses no opinion of Stonewall Jackson, who was as good as any of them.

LOUIS SCHAEFER, proprietor of the opera house at Canton, Ohio, was written by Mrs. McKelham, grand-daughter of Thomas Jefferson, who was recently granted a pension by Congress, offering her a home. "She shall have the best means will allow," he says, "and I will gladly welcome her to my roof. She is now over 70 years of age. That is the kin of a Democrat I am."

MINISTER LANGSTON, who represents the United States at the capital of Hayti, stands, with Frederick Douglass, Professor Greener, ex-Senator Bruce and a few other very prominent men in the midst of his race. Langston arrived from Port-au-Prince the other day on a strange errand. His son, Frank Langston, recently killed James Spencer in Baltimore, and until the father reached Washington on Monday the murderer was in hiding. Then he gave himself up and there were sensational scenes of weeping and so on between the father and son. Col. G. Ingersoll is to defend the accused.
